Tallahassee company BevShots MicroArt blends art with adult beverages by featuring images of beer, wine, liquors and cocktails shot by a high-powered microscope on canvas and gallery-grade paper.

The unique cocktail art is available from a sophisticated web site, where prices range from $20 for a metallic print, up to $550 for a large print matted in a deluxe frame or an image on canvas in an elegant floating frame.

No two beverages look alike, with images representing an array of colors and patterns that can fit the decor of any home or office.

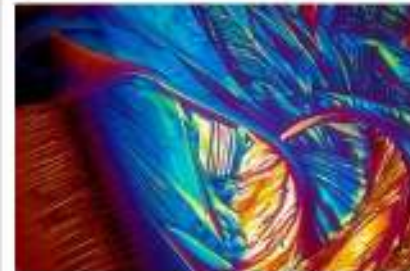

"BevShots easily mix with today's trends in abstract art, but feature a topic we all know and love - alcoholic beverages," said BevShots President Lester Hutt. "It's exciting to find out what your drink of choice looks like under a microscope. We're thrilled by the outpouring of interest from people who want to display their favorite drinks in their home or office."

Hutt is also counting on BevShots' images finding their way to this year's holiday gift lists.

"It's the perfect gift for a friend, family member or client who loves art, a drink, a unique accessory for their home decor and the ultimate conversation piece," Hutt said.

Any of BevShots images can be ordered online at www.BevShots.com. Gift cards are available for those who would rather let recipients select their own favorite image.

As with its molecular shot of champagne (pictured here), BevShots' images feature vibrant colors and abstract patterns printed on canvas, gallery-grade paper or metallic paper. Visit www.Bevshots.com. (Michael Deviston/Special to Business Matters)
